EMMA AISTON

11.11.11

Shrine Time is our first solo exhibition presented at Sophie Gannon Gallery for Designwork 06, the sixth in an annual series of exhibitions dedicated to presenting the best Australian design in a commercial gallery context.

Shrine Time includes new works exploring the concept of memory – the making and preservation of collective memories, cultural and personal identity, and how we deal with grief, loss and recollection. These small memorials allow for contemplation and act as reminders of people, places and periods in time of personal importance. The works also act as a home in which memories can be connected to, reflected upon, respected and celebrated.
